This article presents the results of the new archaeological campaigns of 2004-2009 from the two Radovanu davae. Surfaces investigated, excavation methods used, as well as the magnetometric prospections were referred to. Surface constructions and their utility, especially the ones of Second Gorgana, the deepened dwellings of the First Gorgana as well as the various types of fire installations (domestic hearths, altar-hearth, ovens) are taken into discussion.
